CONN BROTHERS

Watch for the date for "The Deacon."

Dr. E. H. Pearce entertained the official members of his church at dinner Monday evening at the Kengarian.

"The Deacon," a home talent play, will be given at the Court House early in November under the direction of Miss Nell Johnston.

J. B. Sandusky has bought a farm near Nicholasville, at $100 per acre, and will move there. We regret to lose him and his excellent family.

Mr. S. W. Moss, one of Garrard's hustling farmers, will start a dairy in Lancaster, about November 1st. There is a good opening here for such enterprise, and we feel sure that Silas will succeed.

Colored Baptist Church.

The members of the colored Baptist church have added a Baptistry to their house of worship. They will also add a furnace to make the building more comfortable for the winter months.

Faithful Janitor.

Uncle Jim Anderson, the faithful janitor at the Lancaster Graded School is reported on a decline from tuberculosis. The teachers and pupils of the school will present him a leather chair for his long and faithful service.

Sale Of Town Property.

Hughes & Swinebroad report that they have sold for R. E. McRoberts what is known as the Burnside dwelling and lot on corner of York and Danville streets to Miss Eliza E. Smith for three thousand dollars. Possession January 1st, 1910.

Sold Again.

The property on Richmond road near town, sold last week by J. B. Sandusky to Alexander Walker, was sold this week by Walker to W. A. Price at an advance of $700, the price being $14,300.

Mr. Price also comes to town to get the benefit of our excellent school, which has made town property in demand.

Looks Good.

The new road machine, which the city recently purchased, was given a trial on Totten avenue this week. It did extra good work, making the rough street now look like a boulevard. We are glad that the majority of this council, and the Mayor, will be re-elected, since they have begun to do such good work. If they will continue the work on the streets and not forget the sidewalks we will guarantee their election 2 years hence.

Born last week, to the wife of Roy Schooler, a daughter.

Madames Fannie Farrar and James Clark are on the sick list.

Rev. and Mrs. O. P. Bush are rejoicing over the arrival of a son on last Friday.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Baptist reserve the date of December 11th for a bazaar.

Don't read the second column on fourth page unless you are a subscriber for the CENTRAL RECORD.

The friends of Mr. T. Pollard are glad he will be well enough to return from the infirmary at Louisville this week.

Dr. Wm. Burnett left Wednesday afternoon in his automobile, for Shelbyville, to see his niece, who was recently bitten by a mad dog.

Miss Fannie Wilson has just returned from Cincinnati, where she bought a new and up-to-date line of fancy embroidery patterns and floss and will be glad to show them to her customers.

The Malleable Range exhibit at Haselden Bros., which will continue during this week, is drawing large crowds. They are serving a nice lunch to all who give them a call this week.

It is a pleasure to us to learn that Sam Johnson Jr., who has been in an infirmary in Louisville for several weeks, has recovered sufficiently to come home. We were glad to see "Tastie" out Wednesday.

James Jones sold a house and lot on Campbell street to James Cumley, of Hackley, for $800. Mr. Cumley will move his family here the first of the year, to send his children to our fine school.

Aunt Hanna Jennings, colored, died at her home in this city last Friday. The burial took place Sunday afternoon in the Lancaster Cemetery. She was a highly respected woman, and as she was so kind in sickness, she tied herself to many white families in the community.

Sale Of Land.

Hughes & Swinebroad and Jas. I. Hamilton sold for G. B. Swinebroad 83 acres of land near Bryantsville, a part of the Dunn farm, to C. A. Willard, of Virginia, at $100.00 per acre. We are glad to welcome Mr. Willard to Garrard County.

Hopper.

William D. Hopper, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. William D. Hopper, died at their home, 1328 Lee street, at 8:15 o'clock Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Hopper have a large circle of friends in this city who will deeply sympathize with them in their bereavement. (Charleston, Gazette.)

The deceased is a grand son of Mr. W. D. Hopper, a prominent lawyer, who lived here for many years, and who has brothers and sisters still residing here.

Booming! Booming!

Every day in the week and each week in the month either brings new comers to our city or inquiries for houses in which to live. All of this is due to our school advantages, our markets and the best merchants in Kentucky. Why do not some men who are financially able, build some cottages for rent? They can easily be rented to net the owner a good percent. We'd as well lock the city gates as to have good men turned away because we have no houses. Wake up! Wake up!

RELIGIOUS.

Rev. O. P. Bush will fill his pulpit at Buckeye Sunday.

On account of holding a meeting at Hubble, Dr. Pearce will not preach at Lancaster Sunday.

Eld. F. M. Tindler's subject at the morning service at the Christian church, next Sunday, will be—Religious Prejudices—Sunday night—Death-Death Confession.

Rev. C. C. Brown left Saturday to attend the Presbytery at Columbia, Ky. He will go from there to Bowling Green Tuesday to attend the Synod of Kentucky. Mrs. Brown will attend the Missionary Union at the same time and place.

Tuesday Oct. 26.

Daily Gospel Services at McKendree church, Hubble, Lincoln county, commencing above date 10:30 a. m. Motto of services: "Honor the Word; Honor the Spirit." Outlook encourages for gracious interest. All people—all churches, fraternally welcome. Opening days of services will be Bible Readings on following subjects:—to serve which—don't forget your own Bible: bring it—bring it!

Tuesday, 10:30 a. m. Oct. 26, "The Savior of Now;" Wednesday Oct. 27, "Repentance Unto Life;" Thursday, Oct. 28, "The Faith of Power;" Friday, Oct. 29, "Regeneration as Fact;" Sunday, Oct. 30, "Conversion as Experience;" (Sunday School Lesson) Families and individuals especially and earnestly requested to devotionally remember these services in their own homes.

Other notice later. A fruitful great crop harvest just gathered, 1909; why begrudge a half day now, in gratitude to its Donor?

Fishing Notice.

The Water Works Lake will be open for fishing beginning Saturday October 23 1909 and remaining open until April 1, 1910. Only those members who have paid their dues for the year 1908, and the preceding years are eligible to fish. Any other person fishing there will be trespassers and will be prosecuted as such.

If you are in arrears call at F. P. Frisbie's drug store and pay your dues before fishing. By order of the Board of Directors, this October 18, 1909. F. P. Frisbie, Sec'y.

Walker.

Again a large relationship is grief-stricken and a cloud hovers over the community, caused by the death of Mrs. Dorcas Leavel Walker, at the home of her son-in-law, Mr. George D. Robinson, on last Monday morning. She was in the 57th year of her age, and had been ill but a short time, death resulting from pneumonia. A large crowd of relatives and friends attended the funeral services at the Presbyterian church, on Tuesday afternoon, where words of comfort were spoken by Rev. C. C. Brown and Eld. F. M. Tindler. Burial followed in Lancaster Cemetery. Sweet music and abundant and beautiful floral designs, in various forms, were offered as tokens of love and esteem.

Deceased was the widow of the late Judge W. E. Walker, who was Judge of the county court and represented Garrard county in the Legislature. She leaves two daughters and four sons, all of whom are well-known and very intelligent—Mrs. G. D. Robinson, and Miss Nancy, for whom the deepest sympathy is expressed over her being unable to reach home, from her school, in Virginia, until after the death of her mother. The sons are L. L., a prominent lawyer of this city; Green Clay, now located in Louisville; William, now of Tennessee and Horace of this city. With the example given them, by the life of the mother, and many other advantages, they are useful members of society, and shining lights in the spheres in which they move.

Having descended from a long line of worthy and distinguished ancestors, deceased had those elevated conceptions, of the principles that should govern human action, so well defined as to make her helpful in every walk, where she came in contact with others. The beauty of her soul was manifested by a smile and a kind word in every condition of life. Her devotion to her church and charitable organizations was such as to elicit universal admiration; and it can be truly said that she will not meet her savior empty-handed, the world having been made better by her pure, devoted and unselfish life. The memory of her sweet life will linger with us and shed a ray of light over the moral and spiritual world, as the light of the sun remains, after it is hidden from view.

For those who are bending with bitter grief we would implore the blessings of Providence and commend the example which her pure, Christian life has left for them; for in such a life alone is there anything permanent and enduring. May they become thoroughly imbued with her faith, her spirit and her life, enjoying the rich inheritance of an untarnished name, left by her, as she departed for the Courts of Glory.

Cable—Robinson.

The marriage of Mr. Cleve Cable and Miss Mae Robinson was solemnized in the historic old church, "Pleasant Grove" Thursday, Oct. 14th at 3 o'clock. Never was this church more beautifully decorated than for this occasion. The entire pulpit was a mass of golden rods and ferns, and extending far on either side. This bower of beauty was studded with white candles which shed their mellow light on the bridal party and carried out the color scheme of yellow and white.

When Miss Annie K. Jenkins began the strains of the wedding march, the ushers, Mr. Harry Robinson, of Danville, and Mr. Frank Robinson, brother of the bride, led the way to the altar. The little flower girls, Gladys Center and Mae Humphrey Robinson, beautifully dressed in white, scattered flowers in the brides pathway as she came forward on the arm of her maid of honor, Miss Cyrena Dunn and met her betrothed, Mr. Cable, who came up the opposite aisle with his best man, Mr. Edgar Dunn. Eld. F. M. Tindler in most sacred sentences made these two, one. Sweet notes of Lange's "Flower Song" could be heard during the ceremony.

The bride was becomingly attired in a traveling suit of blue silk with hat and gloves to match. Miss Dunn wore a blue tailored gown and black beaver hat.

The happy wedded pair immediately drove to Danville where they took the train south en-route to their future home, Havana Cuba.

Mr. Cable is a native of Kentucky but is a civil engineer employed by the government and stationed in Cuba. He is an unusually bright young man, successful in business and a favorite with all who know him.

Miss Robinson has many charms and it may well be said to know her is to love her. Cuba has indeed gained one of Kentucky's fairest jewels, and may the pathway of Mr. and Mrs. Cable be ever strewn with flowers.

The Record extends congratulations and best wishes.

Democratic Rally.

About three miles from this city, half a mile from the Danville road, is a place on Dix's River, familiarly known as Cat Hole Bend, on account of it being a good fishing point. No truer democrats or better people live than those in that section. On last Saturday they had a bountiful dinner, near the river, and about 150 voters, who know the importance of electing the democratic ticket and perpetuating the principles of equal rights to all and exclusive privileges to none, partook of their hospitality. Words of cheer and confidence in the success of the entire ticket, were expressed by everybody. Several of the nominees on the county ticket and Judge M. C. Sautley were present and received assurances of hearty support. Though this goes without saying, as they are true to their party and realize that they are solemnly obligated to support the nominees. They will not be lead astray by personal considerations, the love of money, or by any issue foreign to the party principles. After dinner several were called for speeches. Joe E. Robinson made a rallying speech and introduced Judge Sautley, who spoke at some length, in his usually eloquent and attractive strains. John N. Williams welcomed the crowd on behalf of his neighbors. A. B. Brown Jr. and Eugene B. Brown answered repeated calls and spoke along lines consistent with the occasion, making earnest appeals for the support of every democratic nominee. In fact it was an old-fashioned, democratic love feast, free from fiction or disturbance of any kind, and the boys will all vote democratic on November second.

Those who were familiar with the life and character of Judge William Lindsay and who realize his brilliant achievements as a jurist and a statesman, regret exceedingly to hear of his death, at Frankfort, on last Friday. A leader in State and National legislation and a learned judge of the appellate court—his brilliant career will be remembered by the attorneys of Kentucky and all loving States.

The Herald printed bills Tuesday announcing speaking dates for Judge Herndon, Judge Cardwell and other Republican candidates. When Judge Sautley sets on their trail, he will scatter them like they were a flock of crows. But we think Judge Sautley should not interfere with this agitation, for the more they speak the larger will be the Democratic majority. Harrodsburg Herald.

We refer with pride, to the fact that our subscription list is still growing rapidly, and we hope to be able to advocate those interests and principles that will always insure public approval. Merchants should take notice that advertisements in the Record are now read by several hundred more people than they were a few months ago.

Our physicians and business men generally have awakened to the importance of a home infirmary, and a move is on foot to raise stock and purchase property. No one should refuse to aid in this matter and save thousands of dollars to the community.

The service of the L. & N. Railroad is all that can be desired. We have good connection North, South, East and West, and we come from Louisville to Lancaster in three hours and fourteen minutes—a distance of 113 miles.

Do you know that Danville, Nicholasville, Richmond, Stanford and Mt. Vernon have concrete sidewalks, and that Lancaster still has some of rough rock and sunken brick.

We offer a more difficult question than—"How old was Ann"? It is this. Did Cook or Peary, either go to the North Pole?

Will you have the goodness to define your position?

Thanking you in advance for your courtesy and trusting that you will be able to give assurances, which will be in line with the sentiment of the vast majority of the voters of the State towards that measure, I am

A second letter was also sent to Mr. J. W. Bogle and there has been no response.

Mr. John F. Marsee answered as follows:
Dear Sir:—
Louisville, Ky.

In reply to your letter of August 24, in regard to my attitude, if elected, towards the County Unit Bill: I desire to state that I am in favor of the Bill and will do all I can to secure its passage.

Stamper, of Harboursville, will give a lecture on, What Constitutes a well rounded education, Hon. J. E. Robinson, of Lancaster, and lawyer O. P. W. A. Wheeler, Vice Pres.

Rabbit and Squirrel Season Closed.

The closed season for the hunting of rabbits and squirrels is now on, and it is against the law to kill these animals from now until the beginning of the quail season on November 15. The law governing these animals was passed for the purpose of affording protection to quail during the two months immediately preceding the expiration of the closed season. Some hunters take advantage of the opportunity offered for other game and kill quail while supposed to be hunting rabbits and squirrels.

We regret that space prevents us from printing the program in full of the Teachers' Association, at Cartersville, last Saturday, which Mr. Jesse Baird, the secretary, was kind enough to send us. The association was called to order by the Vice President, Mr. J. A. Arnold, and a large crowd attended, although many teachers thought it would not convene until later, and were not there.

Thinking that our "cushaw" had given out, Mr. J. P. Doty presented us with the largest pumpkin we have seen this year, also a large basket of Nonesuch and Pippin apples that would take the premium at any fruit show. Mr. Doty says he has at least 200 bushels of these apples. He certainly is a lucky man.

WALLER HUDSON'S LETTER

A very interesting but ordinary occurrence on the ranch is the busting of bronchos by the Indians. A herd of one of them is lassoed and led out on the plain. Here he is blindfolded and a rope is securely tied around his girth. Two Indians on horses get on either side to hold him while a third mounts him, grasping with his hands the rope under which he pushes his knees. The blindfold is lifted and away aloft they go yelling across the valley, until a considerable lot of ginger is taken out of the broncho.

The last day of July came, and we had neither received any mail nor had heard a word from the outside world. That afternoon Mr. Campbell, with Dr. Gilbert and Dr. Jones, two San Diego dentists, came tramping into the ranch house. They had come from San Diego in an automobile to within five miles of the house, where the steepness of the road down the mountain compelled them to stop. The next morning early, I rode to the machine and packed a package of sixteen letters for myself, which I read while riding back. They were unusually enjoyable, you may be sure.

Then began the preparation for the deer hunt, which we were to take up among the pines on the San Pedro Martin mountain range. To begin, the mules were driven up off the range and shot. The shooting of a horse or mule on a ranch, where they run wild for a good part of the year, is interesting, often times exciting. One horse was partly broncho, and could be approached only with care. Each foot in turn was tied up under him and shot. But when a blind foot was tied up he began bucking furiously. He was finally thrown and by the time he was shot his head had been tied to a beam, both fore feet to a post, one hind foot to a post in front of him, the other to a post behind him. His nose was bleeding, one eye was nearly out, and his lips so badly strained that it was necessary to turn him out.

The grub, cooking utensils, sleeping bags, and guns were set in order for an early departure on the following morning. Then it was that we saw a scientific exhibition of packing.

When we had gone two or three miles across the valley, the first incident worthy of note took place. Tomas, the Indian guide, was bucked off and dragged about thirty yards by a broncho, which immediately ran off and covered twenty-five miles before he was lassoed. Thereupon one of the pack mules became excited and took flight, scattering his cargo all over the valley. Nearly a half day was consumed in getting the caravan of ten miles in motion again.

Parts of the trail up the mountains were exceedingly steep and difficult. At one place one of the pack mules fell over backwards and nearly rolled over Dr. Jones, who, being a sturdy pillar of the Christian church, so far forgot himself in his excitement and fright as to sling a very bad application at the unfortunate mule. For his outburst of indignation he at once apologized and promised not to do it again.

At night the mules were hobbled, and a bell tied around the neck of one, so Tomas could easily locate him the following morning.

The third day found us on top of the San Pedro range, covered with magnificent spruces, firs and pines. The average altitude on top is 10,000 feet, the highest peak being 11,200 feet. It is cool; even in the summer there is little shadow of frost. Nearly the whole of the first afternoon was spent with the field glasses. The view is the most magnificent I have ever seen. I understand that a widely traveled scientist who was there stated that in extent it is surpassed by only one other in the world. Standing in one place I was able to see with the naked eye the Pacific Ocean, one hundred and fifty miles to the west; the Gulf of California, twenty-five miles to the East, and the state of Sonora, Mexico on the other side; the entire delta of the Colorado River to the Northeast; and mountains in California and Arizona, one hundred and fifty miles to the North. Niagara Falls or the Grand Canyon of the Yellowstone are not nearly so impressive and awesome. As Mr. Campbell expresses it, "It is indescribable, and were it describable, it would be unbelievable."

Mr. Campbell guaranteed deer. So it was with a feeling of confidence that he, Dr. Jones, and I started out together the first morning. The enjoyment of riding among the giant bull pines, with the air sufficiently cool to be bracing, was intense. I can feel its echoes as I recall it. Within an hour Dr. Jones shot a large buck. After dressing it and tying it on his mule, he started for camp. A few minutes later it began to rain. Mr. Campbell and I were under some pines, seeking shelter from the rain, when we saw a buck run across the valley into some willows lining an arroyo, out of sight. I put spurs to my mule, and in a few minutes saw him standing looking directly at me. I stopped, dismounted, fired, and down he went. Then we started for camp, only a couple of miles away. It was still raining and I was leading my mule with the deer in the saddle. Before going two hundred yards I saw fire in a bunch run up the side of a hill in front of us. Leaving the mule with Mr. Campbell I followed, and in five minutes saw the buck. I shot one and could have killed two or three more, but I had all I wanted. Then I went up to the one I had shot, which was lying on the ground, apparently dead. I set my gun down and prepared to dress it. Before doing so, however, I turned around and called to Mr. Campbell to bring the mule up, as I had a deer. While I was calling I heard a noise behind me, and looking around I saw to my amazement the deer that I had, running off. I ran over and picked up my rifle, and just did have time to drop the deer before it was out of sight. By noon we were in camp and I had seen nine deer that morning. Dr. Gilbert and Schwartz came in at dusk, each having shot a deer, 'tho Schwartz didn't get his till next morning, when Tomas tracked and found it for him.

Our appetites were ferociously keen, so you may imagine with what rapidity venison disappeared.

The next day we jerked the venison, which is done by cutting it into thin strips and hanging it out to be dried by the sun. The heads were prepared for the taxidermist by removing the skins and salting them, and taking the meat from the skull. The brains were saved for tanning the hides, and some of the feet we kept for gun rack. All day we were busy attending to the deer, and that night some comical remarks were innocently made. Dr. Gilbert:—"Where is my hide?" Dr. Jones:—"Hanging upon a limb." Schwartz:—"Where did you throw my feet?" Dr. Gilbert:—"In the sack." Mr. Campbell:—"Doc, where is your head?" Doc:—"I don't know." Dr. Jones:—"Has anyone seen my brains?" Schwartz:—"I think not."

We had all the deer we wanted for a while, so Dr. Gilbert and I took our kodaks and hunted deer for their pictures. We took quite a number but as you see they do not show up well as they were too far away.

Tomas, called Tomas el Comedien, because he is humorously inclined, is an unusual Indian. He would grunt and laugh at every thing that was said or done. At night he would set fire to a fallen pine, and sleep as near as comfort would allow. He would take all the ribs of one side of a deer, insert the end of a long stick into them, roast them over the coals, and there eat all, enough for half a dozen ordinary families. With what sort of digestive organs his anatomy was endowed we could only wonder. Mr. Campbell had had him sent to jail for three years for stealing some of his cattle, but apparently he seemed to think it was the only natural thing to be done, and came back to go to work for him.

Dr. Gilbert, Tomas, and I spent two days hunting mountain sheep on the eastern bluff of the range, where there is almost a sheer drop of 8,500 feet. Dr. Gilbert and I each carried a canteen of water, a light coat and a rifle of course. Tomas carried the kodak, the field glasses, and the grub, consisting of tortillas, jerky, raisins, and coffee ready mixed with penoche—Mexican cane sugar. The climbing among the cliffs, as we stood on a ledge a few inches in width, with the place where we would land if we fell hundreds of feet below, was thrilling in the extreme. That night we passed in a canyon. We built two fires and placed some boughs on the ground between them for a bed. You may be certain that our rifles were not far away, for it was not improbable that we would receive a call from some of the mountain lions whose home we were invading. Coming out of the canyon we saw seven sheep standing on the edge of a cliff several hundred yards above us, but they scampered off unharmed.

The deer were sufficiently numerous to have permitted our killing a good many had we been so inclined. However when we had enough fresh meat we hunted with the kodak only. We returned at the end of two weeks to the ranch, whence Schwartz left for San Diego in the machine with the two doctors. I remained to go to a lower range of mountains out on the desert in quest of the object of my trip—a big horn sheep.

As you know, all animals are endowed with some means of protection from their enemies. Mountain sheep depend upon their ability to climb cliffs so inaccessible that nothing else can follow them, not even their worst enemy, the mountain lion. This fact makes the hunting for them extremely difficult and sometimes dangerous. Their heads are imposing and handsome. The day is not far distant when it will be impossible to get one in the United States at any rate. For these three reasons the head of the big horn is a much prized trophy. Taking this into consideration I started to the desert fully decided not to return without a sheep.

Mr. Campbell, Juan, a Mexican boy, nicknamed Eagle Eye, which is self explanatory, two pack mules, an extra horse in case of an emergency or accident, and I, composed the outfit. Two days were consumed in getting to the sheep country, the most of which was spent in crossing the desert.

The heat was terrific and water was to be found in only three places, each of which was a natural basin or tank in the rocks where the rain water fell and remained. In it, were myriads of insects. Carrying it in our canteens suspended from the saddle horn, it became so hot as to almost burn the lips. There was little satisfaction to thirst. The desert offers two striking peculiarities in respect to its animal and vegetable life. Nearly every form of vegetation is covered with thorns such as, the cactus, and nearly all species of animal life are poisonous, such as centipedes, tarantulas, Gila monsters, scorpions and rattlesnakes. It produces in one a wild sensation to stand on a mountain and look down upon the desert. The artist who illustrated Dante's Inferno would no doubt enjoy the sight of it. It is simply hellish.

The first night in camp I stooped over to pick up the coffee pot near the fire and barely missed closing my finger upon a healthy looking tarantula.

Feeding Farm Hands.

Every farmer's wife knows what tremendous appetites farm hands usually have; but while they eat well they work well, too.

Here's a good suggestion about feeding farm hands. Give them plenty of Quaker Oats. A big dish of Quaker Oats porridge with sugar and cream or milk is the greatest breakfast in the world for a man who needs vigor and strength for a long day's work. The man that eats Quaker Oats plentifully and often is the man who does good work without excessive fatigue. There is a sustaining quality in Quaker Oats not found in other foods, and for economy it is at the head of the list. Besides the regular size packages Quaker Oats is packed in large size family packages, with and without china.

WHAT HAD SHE LOOKED FOR?

Perhaps Engaged Girl Wanted to Have Something Serious to Forgive Her Fiance.

"You have never told me anything about your past," she said timidly. A troubled look came over him. He realized that, although they had been engaged nearly a month, he had certainly been negligent in that direction.

"I suppose I ought to say something about it," he said.

"Promise—to tell me all."

"Do you mean that?"

"Everything."

He clasped her hands. The crisis had come.

"Dearest," he said, "I'll make a clean breast of it. Of course I realize that it had to come. Still—"

"Go on!"

"I've led a pretty hard life, I guess. In college there was a time when I didn't do much else but buck the tiger."

"What's that?"

"Well, it's playing poker mostly. I got in the hole pretty deep. Then, of course, I had my fill of drinking, carousing, late hours. I broke loose at last. You see, I had to, but it was pretty fierce."

"Did you stop?"

"Well, partly. Then I had love affairs—there were so many of 'em, you know, that it didn't matter. I was dropped once—then I braced up—got through. I spun around a little after that until I got to playing the ponies."

"Playing the ponies?"

"Yes—race track, you know. Betting on horses. But, thank heavens, I saw the folly of that."

"And you stopped?"

"Absolutely. You see, I came to myself. My character asserted itself. It was a hard fight, but I won. I wish it wasn't there, dear. But I was bound to tell the truth. Tell me it's all right. Tell me you will forget it."

She looked at him with a troubled look.

"I suppose I shall have to," she said. "But—I thought you were a good deal worse than that."—Thomas L. Mason, in Lippincott's.

IT SOUNDED FAMILIAR.

Widow Brown (regarding the new acquisition) "My word! It's almost the same as having a man about the house."

Trouble in Hades.

His Satanic majesty touched a button and summoned his head imp. "What is all that noise in Factory street?"

"Your imperial majesty, it is the women mobbing the new corset factory. They are all demanding one of those new red-hot, electric-charged corsets."

"Sufferin' souls!" gasped his majesty, "and I thought I had invented a new torment."

"The mistake was in forcing that French girl to wear one first. She made 'em all believe they are the very latest style."

"Saints above! and I thought I understood women. Well, well, now that I think of it the plan works out better than I thought. Take 'em away from all the ladies but a few; see that they are advertised as the very latest fashion and I guess that will make those women who can't get 'em suffer all right, all right"—Puck.

Where Her Friend Was.

The fluffy little woman in the "peach basket" bonnet had the tired clerk pull down forty-nine of the fifty rolls of silk and snip off samples of each for her.

"Thank you so much," she twittered with an engaging smile, "but I didn't want to buy any silk for myself; I was just looking for a friend."

"Well," murmured the clerk, with a wicked leer at the bonnet, "why not look in this last roll? He might be in that, you know."

CURED BRONCHITIS

Mrs. Hopkins Says Her Life Was Saved—Checked and Gasped
for Breath.

"Some five years ago I was taken with a bad attack of bronchitis. I was affected with a bronchial cough and cold, the cough was generally much more apparent at night, and I would wake up choking and gasping for breath, and there seemed to be a terrible stippage in my throat and tubes.
My throat was tender and irritable,
and had an aching sensation, which was especially bad at times. I doctored and used several remedies, but received no permanent relief until I used Hymel. This remedy is certainly a life saver, and it saved my life and I accord it the credit which it deserves. There is nothing too strong for me to say regarding Hymel."—
Mrs. Ada Hopkins, 8, Cutler Ave., Coldwater, Mich., August 22, 1908.

R. E. McRoberts sells Hymel (pronounced High-o-me) and he guarantees
it to cure bronchitis, catarrh, asthma, croup, hay fever, coughs and colds, or money back.

The price for a complete outfit is only $1.00, which includes a bottle of Hymel
and a neat hard rubber inhaler.

MI-ONA Cures Indigestion

It relieves stomach indigestion, sour stomach, belching, and cures all stomach diseases or money back. Large box of tablets 50 cents. Druggists in all towns.

For Cheaper Raw Materials.
It is a mistake to assume that American consumers are the only clamorers for lower duties in certain tariff schedules. Manufacturers, giving allegiance to both political parties have joined in the demand in order to increase the export market.

Herein we have one of the main reasons for lower duties on certain raw materials in the Payne bill. Manufacturers, with market conditions at their fingers' ends, know that cheaper raw materials will enable a further invasion of foreign markets.

"And don't forget, either," cautions
a Kansas paper, "that it was the Republican party that said the tariff must be revised by its friends." If the Republican party said that it seems to be making good with one campaign pledge, at least—Kansas City Star.

Strange idiosyncrasies and opinions of some gray-haired people and those affected with scalp and hair trouble.

New York City sends out more salesmen twice over, in all probability, than any other city in the world. At an annual banquet given by a big firm
to its salesmen there were present some two hundred gray-haired and bald-headed salesmen. It was a subject of mournful discussion among them that the firm was commencing to prefer younger men. One old patriarch, grown gray in the service, remarked to several gathered around him: "Here I am doing good if not better work than I ever did in my life yet, because I am commencing to show my age, am slated for the 'has-been' division. I wish I knew of something that would turn my hair to the color of that of a lanky man of thirty." "We don't you use Q-Ban Hair Restorer?" suggested one of his audience. "My friend," answered the old fellow, "I once visited the plant of a big patent medicine firm. On my way through one room, I asked one of the employers what they put up there. 'Hair Restorer,' I was told.
Well, I want to say that among the employees working in that room I never in my life saw together so many gray-haired and bald-headed people." "All right," replied the other, "I have a good head of fine brown hair, haven't I?
Well, my hair three months ago,
before I came with this firm, was a fine old iron gray. I used Q-Ban Hair Restorer you see the result, and the owners of Q-Ban Hair Restorer agreed to refund me my money if it didn't do a fine old iron gray. My wife used Q-Ban Hair Tonic and it has cleared her scalp, stopping her hair from falling out, and I'll bet its increased the length six inches." "Where can you get it?" "Oh at any drug store, and the druggist will back up the guarantee."

R. E. McRoberts recommends and sells these preparations.

If you are gray haired or your hair is commencing to fade you can have the first full size 50c bottle by sending 12c in postage to the Hessig-Ellis

Flourishing a knife and announcing

Charles Thorp, an aged prospector,

MAY HAVE PLANNED REVENGE

Sardonic Man Saw One Good Reason
Why Girl Should Choose Her
Least Worthy Suitor.

"Of course it's an old saying that
'you never can tell about a woman,'"
said the surgeon reminiscently. "I remember once when I was a hospital intern we had as a patient a young lady who had been badly burned as a result of her clothes catching on fire.
Her burns persistently refused to heal, so we decided there was only one way to save her and that was by a skin grafting operation. We communicated with her friends and relatives and asked for volunteers who were willing to sacrifice their cuticle in the interest of the young lady's good looks and possibly her life."
"The first volunteers were two young men who said they knew the patient and wished to give up some cuticle for her benefit. We learned that the two were hot rivals for the young lady's favor and neither was willing to let the other get ahead. We agreed to use skin impartially from each, but at the very first flash of a knife one of the candidates weakened and said he didn't think he would be able to stand it. In fact, he announced that he had changed his mind and wasn't going to part with any of his valuable outer covering. Arguments were of no avail, so we were forced to take all the skin we needed from the second suitor, who stood it without a flinch. The young lady recovered completely, with her looks almost unimpaired."

"And of course rewarded the hero
who had so nobly offered up his cuticle for her sake by bestowing herself
upon him," suggested one of his listeners.

"On the contrary," said the surgeon,
"she afterward married the other man. That's what called forth the remark with which I began this yarn."

There was a moment's silence, while the group wagged its heads.

"I don't see anything strange about that," spoke up the sardonic member of the party. "Perhaps that was the only way she had of getting even with him." And it being agreed that this suggestion explained everything, the waiter was requested to fill 'em up again.

FROM THEIR HUSBAND.

Mr. Oldwed—Well, girls always like fairly stories.

Mrs. Oldwed—It's a good thing, for after they grow up and get married,
they have to listen to a lot of them.

Johnnie's Fear.
Little Johnnie, aged six, had been to church and had displayed more than usual interest in the sermon, in which the origin of Eve had been dwelt on at some length. On his return from the services, there being company to dinner, he had displayed
a good deal of interest in the tables,
especially the mince pie and cakes.

Some time afterward, being missed,
he was found sitting quietly in a corner with his hands pressed tightly over his ribs and an expression of awful anxiety on his face. "Why, what on earth is the matter?" asked his mother in alarm.

"Mamma, I'm afraid I'm going to have a wife."—National Food Magazine.

In the Artillery.
A gunner of the Garrison artillery,
who had successfully passed a blacksmith's course, was at home on furlough, wearing the hammer and pincers on his arm, when he was accosted by a civilian, who asked what the decoration was for.

"Oh," replied Tommy, facetiously,
"I'm an army dentist."

"I see," said the civilian. "Of course, the pincers are for extracting the teeth, but what is the idea of the hammer?"

"Well, you see, some of the chaps
are a bit nervous, so we use the hammer to chloroform them with," was the reply.—London Tit-Bits.

Remarkable!
Public libraries have their uses other than as clearing houses for books. One may there listen to remarks of wisdom, wit, learning, satire, or foolishness. The other day two young women patrons of a branch library met while seeking an exchange.

"Oh," gushed one, "you've got one of the latest books. Are you returning it?"

"Yes. And it's a remarkable book,
by a remarkable author."

"Is that so? How is that?"

"Why," was the explanation, "it's remarkable because there's nothing remarkable in it."

The Housekeeping Bride.

Hubby—"Marie, the milk is not fresh. Is there any ice in the refrigerator?"

Wifey—"Yes, William, but I don't think it's the fault of the milk. The ice didn't look just fresh to me."—
Brooklyn Citizen.

Not Like Papa.

A bright little fellow was taken to a barber shop for the first time to have his hair cut and as the barber
was in the distant part of the shop
for a few moments the small customer said in lowered tones to his father:
"Papa, you must tell the man that I am not to be shaved."—Delineator.

Plain Talk.

"I think she's double-faced!"
"Oh, don't say that! One face like hers is bad enough!"

Farm and Stock.

G. A. Morgan sold W. B. Burton a team of mules for $300.

W. B. Burton was in Mt Sterling
buying mules this week.

Tobacco sales at Danville and Lexington ranged from 8 to 18 cents, on Wednesday.

G. A. Morgan and J. E. Hammond shipped a carload of 500 pound cattle to Cincinnati last Saturday and received 22 to 24 cents for them.

Some warm hog-houses, built before cold weather comes on, will mean a saving of feed and hog flesh—another way of saving, less expense and more money in your purse.

Horses and Mules Wanted.

Any one having horses or mules to sell will profit by selling me, as I will buy them at any time and give the highest market price.

W. B. Burton, Lancaster, Ky.

Do you value a cow according to the amount of milk she produces, or do you test the milk of each individual in the herd, and base her worth on that? The latter is the only safe and sure course.

Wanted Horses and Mules.

I will be in Lancaster, Court Day,
October 25th, to buy a car load of fat horses and mules. Will buy 20 head of 2 year old mules broke and un-broke.

The highest standard of potato culture exists in Maine. Aroostook is the largest potato-growing county in the United States, 18,000,000 bushels being grown there in one season, with an average yield of 275 bushels to the acre.

My property for sale, 2 miles from town on Lexington pike, in Graded School district, brick house, good barn and all necessary outbuildings.

John E. Anderson, Lancaster 10-1-41.

In last weeks issue we stated that Elbert Calico sold his crop of tobacco
to Milo Simpson, representing Danville parties, for 15 cents. This was handed us just this way and it's all true except Mr. Simpson is representing Lexington parties.

Imp. St. Blaise, one of the most famous stallions in the world, is dead at August Belmont's nursery, in Fayette county. His death followed closely that of Ben Strome, another famous horse, who died Thursday. St. Blaise won the English Derby.

Now's the time to break the chickens from roosting out among the sheds and trees. You are liable to neglect this till freezing weather strikes them unaware; then, with frozen combs and frost-bitten feet, the fowls will lay very little, if any, till next spring.

To Dealers in Cattle.

For grazing and feeding cattle call on or place your orders with S. A.

what you want will be made by Mr. W.
O. Park who has had 27 years' experience in selling orders on this market.

More's Early is one of the very best varieties of grapes for planting in all sections where frost is likely to catch the crop before it is fully mature. It is an old and well-known variety. The berries are large and sweet and fully as good in quality as Concord. It is usually not quite so productive, but its earliness makes this variety most valuable for planting
where the summers are short and cool.

ient and best locations in Garrard county, and any one desiring a good home, I would be pleased to have them
call and see me.

How would you like an income of $50.00, $100.00 or $200.00 per month, payable monthly? You can have it by putting in a herd of dairy cows, and patronizing the Creamery. 8 to 10 good cows will bring you $50.00 and upward per month; 16 to 20 good cows will bring you $100.00 and upward per month; 35 to 40 good cows will bring you $200.00 and upward per month.

"Work?" Yes Hard Work,

but do you know of any way of making money without work. If you are looking for a "Snap" don't waste your time fooling with cows.

If you really want to improve your standing in the world, and are willing to study and learn and work, there is no industry that will respond more quickly to your efforts than dairying. The dairying interests are to Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin, Michigan, New York and Ohio as tobacco and hemp are to Kentucky. It is a well known fact that any and all of the above named states are more prosperous than Kentucky; due, no doubt to the fact that their people are quicker in responding to new conditions,
ideas, and new inventions than are ours.

If you are to succeed as a dairyman, you must milk
good cows, house them properly and feed them a balanced ration; and then they will return you a golden harvest.

Come to the creamery and let me explain to you in detail. It will be worth your time.
